Finance market stocks 2025 → One Swap Away

Internet Capital Markets. Powered by Jupiter.

This is not theoretical anymore.

You can now swap stocks on-chain.

Right now. From your pocket on @JupiterExchange.

Open Jupiter Mobile @jup_mobile

Type $TSLAx, $AAPLx, $NVDAx, $Wen

Swap in seconds, no middlemen, no brokerage, no Wall Street gatekeeping

This is not tokenized stocks as a side feature.

This is Wall Street, modularized.

TradFi, rebuilt on DeFi rails.

In one state machine. One tap. One future (@jup_mobile)

Apple, Tesla, Meta, Google, and S&P500 are swappable like USDC.

Available to anyone with a phone and a wallet.

No permissions, no delays, no borders.

This is not crypto catching up.

This is DeFi moving past.

The global financial stack is rewriting itself.

Jupiter Exchange

@JupiterExchange is the core layer, and you're still early.

Welcome to the Internet Capital Markets era.

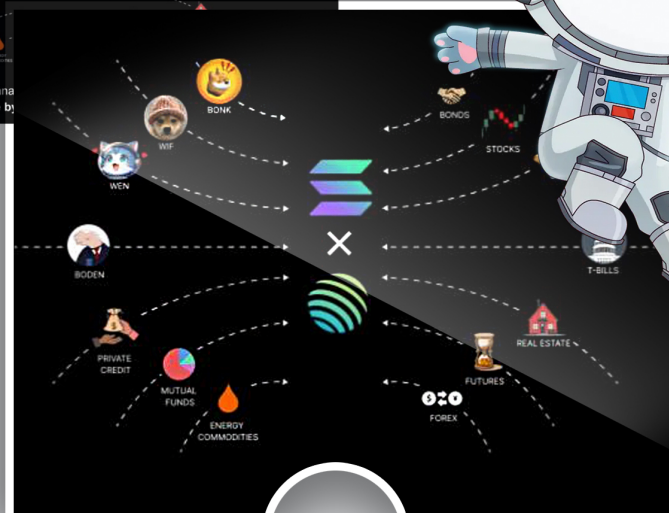

It is fast. It is public. It is liquid.

And this is already in your hands.

Just Use Jupiter.

The vision was clear from the very start.

atomic transaction

In cryptocurrency, an atomic transaction is a set of operations that are treated as a single unit. It guarantees that either all operations in the set are completed successfully, or none of them are executed. This ensures data consistency and prevents issues like double-spending or partial transactions, particularly in decentralized systems.

Solana $SOL, Solana Seeker, $Wen

Here's a more detailed explanation:

Data Consistency: They are crucial for maintaining data integrity, especially in complex transactions involving multiple parties or blockchains.

Indivisibility: Atomic transactions are indivisible, meaning they either happen entirely or not at all.

- No Intermediaries: Atomic transactions can eliminate the need for trusted third parties like exchanges, allowing for trustless, peer-to-peer trading.
- Smart Contracts: They often rely on smart contracts to enforce the "all or nothing" behavior of the transaction.

Jupiter Exchange, Jup with $Wen

Decentralized Systems: Atomic transactions are essential in decentralized systems (like those using blockchains) where multiple parties might be interacting with the same data simultaneously.

Example: Atomic Swaps: A common example is an atomic swap, where two parties exchange cryptocurrencies on different blockchains. The swap only happens if both parties deposit their assets into a smart contract, and if either party fails to do so within a set timeframe, the transaction is reversed.

- Two-Phase Commit: Some systems use a two-phase commit protocol to ensure atomicity, where operations are prepared first, and then committed or rolled back.

Power Wen $Wen history Solana Memecoin WEN Surges 33%, Inverts SHIB Volume After Massive Airdrop

meme moon parallels wen recently outperformed shiba and doge in volume, spiking ~35-42% during Jupiter airdrop hype — it's directly competing with meme giants.

WEN has reached $0.00014, well above its launch price.

About 42.40% of eligible wallets have yet to claim the WEN airdrop.

WEN could trade higher as the team plans to burn unclaimed tokens.

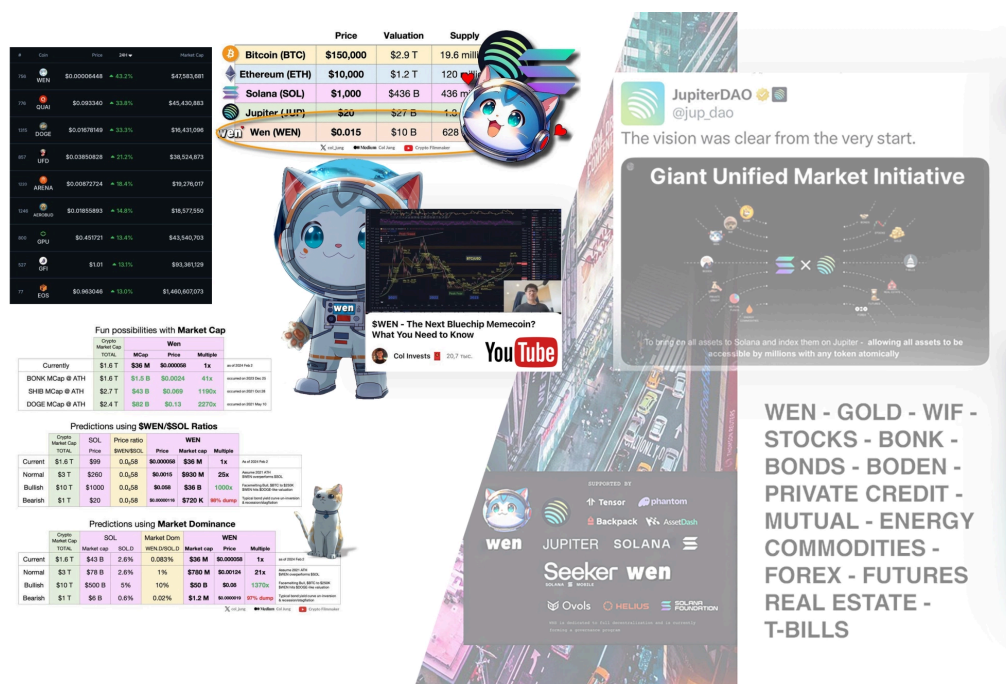

According to CoinMarketCap, Solana-based meme coin WEN has surged 33.45% to $0.00014. Like the price, WEN's market cap has also surged to $141.73 million at press time, making it one of the fastest-growing meme coins on Solana.

WEN has released its debut token for the Jupiter launchpad. For those unfamiliar, Jupiter is a decentralized exchange on Solana. Introducing the launch pad, the exchange r...
